"This week, Summer of Design is Mine posted a collection of interiors decorated with old photographs [left]. They add such a homey feel to the spaces and make you think about the history of each photograph. I bet they'd be great conversation starters at a party or gathering."

—Rachel Follett, Lovely Clusters

"I've seen the IKEA Maskros pendant lamp hacked before, but this one, spotted on Little Green Notebook, is by far the most unique and elegant transformation out there. Jenny had me at gold paint, but the addition of paper "flowers" and little glasslike bowls took this fixture to the next level."

—Katie Stephenson, Art Wall

"Being a lover of all things colorful, I adore artist Mariska Meijers' home. I have absolutely no talent with a paint brush, so it's wonderful to see Mariska work her magic around her house."

—Kellie Collis, Ada and Darcy

"I am in love with these quirky little monkey pictures offered by Jaime Meares on I Suwane. They are just too unique and special to be ignored!"

—Nichole Loiacono, Parlour

"Interior designer Shannon Darby is behind two of my favorite blogs: Pink Wallpaper and The Designer's Attic. On the former, she posts inspiring images—especially interiors—and on the latter, she shares her design process and inspiration. She's off to the races."
